Thriller launches Festival Players 2010 season

Posted By Joanne Courneya-FitzRoy County Weekly News

The first show in the Festival Players lineup for 2010 is going to scare you out of your seat.

I'll Be Back Before Midnight by Peter Colley is a Canadian classic – a comedy thriller sure to have you by turns laughing and screaming. The show opened June 30 at Mount Tabor Playhouse, Milford.

This crowd-pleasing show is full of twists and turns. It is an action packed psychological thriller with all the ingredients for a memorable night out. A couple from the city rents a house in the country so that the wife can recover after a breakdown. But their dream of quiet soon becomes a nightmare. There are ghosts, guns, and things that go bump in the night. People are not what they seem and things don't go as planned. This show is not recommended for children.

"It's great entertainment that's for sure," said Artistic Director Sarah Phillips. "I don't want to give anything away of course, but it's pretty scary stuff."

The talent onstage for this production includes: John Dolan (Stratford, Blyth, Tarragon) as the farmer next door; John Cleland (Shaw, Canstage, Theatre Passe Muraille) as the suspicious husband; Sherri McFarlane (Shaw, Elgin, YPT) as the anxious wife; and Tracey Ferencz (Canstage, Thousand Islands, Shaw) as the sultry sister.

Festival Players of Prince Edward County produces a yearly festival of high-calibre, professional theatre in unique County venues. The group was formed in 2006. Their mission is to provide engaging and intelligent professional theatre; to produce an entirely
